Educational History

Ph.D. May 2001, Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana, Political Science
Dissertation: Lawmaking and separated powers: agenda setting in executive-congressional relations and budgeting.

M.S. June 1997, Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois, Mathematical Methods in Social Sciences

A.B. May 1994, College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Virginia, Government

Professional Experience

Associate Professor, Political Science, School of Economic, Political and Policy Sciences, University of Texas at Dallas, Richardson, Texas, 2010-present.

Instructor, “Advanced Time Series Analysis”, Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research, University of Michigan, August 2012 and 2013. Two week workshop.

Instructor, “Advanced Bayesian Models for the Social Sciences”, Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research, University of Michigan, Each August 2008–2011. One week workshop on Bayesian time series models.

Faculty Associate, Center for Global Collective Action, University of Texas at Dallas, Richardson, Texas, 2007-present.

Assistant Professor, Political Science, School of Economic, Political and Policy Sciences, University of Texas at Dallas, Richardson, Texas, 2005-2010.

Assistant Professor, Department of Political Science, University of North Texas, Denton, Texas, 2001-2005.

Visiting Lecturer of American Politics and Methodology, Department of Political Science, Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana, 2000-2001.

Research Fellow, Harvard-MIT Data Center, Cambridge, Massachusetts, January-June 2000.

Research Interests

My research on political and social dynamics focuses on the development and application of time series models to forecast international relations, to explicate relationships among public opinion, economic policy and the economy, and to explain patterns of conflict and terrorism. The main time series models employed in this research involve Bayesian statistics, multiple equation or vector autoregression models, methods for producing and evaluating the quality of forecasts, the derivation of new models for time series of counts, and modeling structural change and endogenous shifts in data over time.

This research agenda has been funded by the National Science Foundation and the Center for Economic and Risk Analysis of Terrorist Events (CREATE).

Professional Memberships

- American Political Science Association
- Midwest Political Science Association
- International Studies Association
- Society for Political Methodology

Honors and other recognitions

Robert H. Durr Award, Midwest Political Science Association's prize for the best paper applying quantitative methods to a substantive problem at the 2006 meeting. Published as Sattler, Thomas, John R. Freeman and Patrick T. Brandt. 2008. "Popular Sovereignty and the Room to Maneuver: A Search for a Causal Chain" Comparative Political Studies. 41(9): 1212–1239.

Awards and Fellowships

Research Fellow, Workshop in Political Theory and Policy Analysis, Indiana University, Fall 1999.

John V. Gillespie Memorial Scholarship, Department of Political Science, Indiana University, Summer 1999.

Political Science Departmental Fellowship, Indiana University, 1994–1996.

Governor's Fellow, Governor's Commission on Government Reform, Richmond, Virginia, Summer 1994.

W. Warner Moss Prize, Department of Government, College of William and Mary, 1994.

Courses and other curricula developed

Since arriving at UT-Dallas, I have developed or revised a new graduate course nearly every other year. I now regularly teach graduate courses in social science time series and Bayesian analysis to a mixture of Political Science, Political Economy, and Economics students.

Undergraduate courses developed: Predicting Political Conflict (Fall 2009).

Graduate courses developed: Decision Theory (Fall 2006), Maximum Likelihood and Bayesian Models (Fall 2007), Advanced Time Series Analysis (Fall 2008), Advanced Regression Analysis for the Social Sciences (Spring 2009), Public Choice (Spring 2013), Logic, Scope and Methodology of Political Science (Fall 2013).

Workshop Presentation, “Introduction to L^AT_EX”, Office of Educational Enhancement, July and September 2008; February and June 2009; January 2010.

Workshop Presentation, “Assessment Methods for Large Classes”, Office of Educational Enhancement, Spring 2008.
